Summer Study at ROOSEVELT UNIVERSITY

CHICAGO is widely known as a great cultural and recreational center, and each summer teachers and other advanced students come here from all sections of America to vacation and study.

An increasing number of these people enroll each summer for graduate courses at Roosevelt University. They are attracted by Roosevelt's accelerated program of day and evening courses and its ideal location in downtown Chicago — easily accessible to all parts of the city and suburbs.

Full Semester Credit in Each Subject

The graduate summer courses are offered in two six-week day terms* and one nine-week evening term. Students may enroll for as many as six semester hours in each of the summer sessions. A heavier schedule requires permission of the College Dean. Since all summer courses carry full semester credit, students are afforded an excellent opportunity to make up work or to hasten their progress toward the master's degree.

Many courses are open to any graduate student who has the prerequisites, but students desiring to take programs should do so in consultation with a departmental adviser.

Registration Procedure

Students who are now enrolled at Roosevelt University should consult the bulletin boards for notices of exact hour of registration.

Former Students who plan to return in June should request a permit from the Registrar, Room 836.

New students — how to apply:

1. Write or phone the Director of Admissions for an application form. Fill it in and return it to him. It is important that this be done as far in advance of the opening date as possible. A $5 non-refundable application fee must accompany this form.
2. Have a transcript sent to the Director of Admissions by the college or university from which you were graduated.
3. When admitted, you will be notified and may register for classes during the scheduled registration period. At that time a faculty adviser will assist you in arranging your program.

The Admissions Office may be unable to complete the admissions process on applications received after June 1.

**Some of the First Day Term courses are five weeks in length.*
